THE MYSTERY THICKENS.

THE ASSASSIN OF DR. CRONIN STILL UNKNOWN.

The Post Mortem and the Inquest—Arrangements for the Funeral, Which Will Occur Sunday.

One Theory is that English Tories Are Responsible, Another that Cronin Was a British Spy.

Still Others Believe An Opposing Faction of the Irish Planned the Foul Murder.

CHICAGO, May 24.—There are more rumors about the developments in the circumstances concerning the certain brutal fate of Dr. P. H. Cronin. That he was the victim of a murderous band of conspirators was not doubted. His brother, John J. Cronin, came here from Arkansas, viewed the highest corpse under the trickling waters in the basement morgue of Lake View, and positively declared that it was the remains of his brother.

Chief Deputy Coroner Eckhardt will hold the inquest. The jurors chosen by him are: R. S. Twitcheil, Justice Killian, J. H. Vaz Dux, H. A. Hagen, Victor U. Sutter, and Randolph Seifert. After the coroner's inquest was adjourned to Tuesday at 10 a. m.

The post-mortem examination of the remains began at 2:45 o'clock. It was conducted by County Physician Todd, Dr. F. G. Porter, city physician of Lake View, and Dr. L. K. Gregory.

The doctors were occupied in making it until 5 o'clock. They examined the broken finger, the other marks of identification, and made a record of their observations. They refused to say what the result of the examination was, for the reason, as they said, that they could not disclose their information until it was put in the possession of the coroner's jury. While the examination was in progress, the friends of Dr. Cronin were holding a meeting in the police court room above. J. P. Boland, J. F. and Mortimer Scanlan, T. H. Dwyer, H. F. Kelly, Charles Barry, Patrick McGarry, T. T. Conklin, and Mr. McCauley were present.

They agreed to leave the body in the care of the undertaker until Sunday. Then the funeral will take place, the details of which will be arranged by these same gentlemen. The interment will take place at Calvary cemetery.

The police have done nothing to cast light on the dark mystery so far as capturing any one who might know anything of the foul means adopted in consummating the "removal" of Cronin, the police have accomplished nothing. Indeed, Cronin's friends are going to ignore the Chicago police in the investigations they propose to prosecute. Pinkerton detectives held surveillance over the only man put in charge yesterday. He was the leaman, P. O. Sullivan, one of the parties to the contract which blinded the eyes of the murdered physician to the fishiness of the story under which he was deceived from his office to his fate.

State's Attorney Longenecker talked with Sullivan, and also with Justice Mahoney, who had helped Sullivan to make that contract. Mahoney's statement was taken in detail by James M. Parrell, official stenographer of the criminal court, but, according to Mr. Longenecker, at no time did he get any information that had not been detailed in the press reports. The state's attorney is only hopeful that he may be able to unearth the details of a conspiracy, the existence of which there is no apparent doubt.

The committee of Dr. Cronin's friends which has prosecuted the search for him will consult with the state's attorney, W. J. Hynes, and Luther Laflin Mills this morning to decide on some line of prosecution.

"Arrests will be made to-day," said Judge Longenecker, "and I have no idea when anybody will be arrested. I think we will get the murderers, but I am not at all inclined concerning the facts that have developed since the body was found."

"Are you sure it is Cronin's?"

"There is no doubt about that. Several of his friends have identified it."

The judge said it became as all the other authorities concerning developments.

The rumors out are as numerous as they were sensational. One is to the effect that Cronin's friends had been in entire confidence in the city and Lake View detective force. It is an established fact that many of the city force are ardent Irish nationalists, and it is believed that many of them opposed the faction to which Cronin belonged.

Money is rapidly pouring into the fund now being accumulated for the purposes of investigation, and the promoters of the investigation say there will be $20,000 easily raised for the cause. They appear determined to go to bedrock for facts, and the result of their investigation is awaited with keen impatience, as the general impression is that facts peculiarly startling and sensational will be sprung.

The Rev. Father Dorney, pastor of St. Gabriel's church, who became famous in the "Times-Parnell" case, discussed the Cronin mystery yesterday. During his talk with a reporter he said: "I have formed no theory about this terrible matter and I must say that I have not had time to keep myself posted. It was a terrible surprise to me. The theory that his death was caused by his enemies in the Irish movement is not being held by me. I am sure that I am sure that my connection with such affairs and my intimate relationship with those prominent in the Irish movement would have enabled me to know something about it. It is absurd from the fact that all those who were opposed to Cronin in such matters have dropped out and have no interest in the matter. To say that he was killed by any one connected with the Irish society would be to say that he was killed by his friends."

Is it a Tory Plot?

The possibility that the English government through its secret agents may have been seeking to do with the Cronin mystery is not being held slight of Irish-Americans generally, with this thought in view, have been closely watching developments. One well-posted gentleman said: "Scotland yard has been very busy in the Irish case. It would be queer indeed if the Cronin business proved the first exception. Improbable, you say—not a bit of it. Who would have believed before that a movement in the horrible truth about Parnell? There was an instance where, with the funds of the British exchequer, the highest Tory officials joined in a far-reaching, cunningly devised plot to destroy the Irish movement by ruining the leader, Parnell. Forgery, perjury, absolutely no crime necessary was stopped at Parnell, by whatever means it was to be shown up virtually an assassin, the confederate of the Phoenix park murderers. Details were wrought out with the utmost secrecy. Chronin followed it in a manner dramatic beyond precedent and slowly but surely the coils tightened around the great leader. He was delivered only by an accident.

"Now," said the speaker warmly, "who is the beneficiary in this Cronin business—who is the loser? Let it hurt or let it help single person it may, the chief gain, immeasurably, is to the Tory government of England, the main having far exceeding the disgrace of any individual is to the Irish national movement in America.

Let me tell you something peculiar and perhaps startling. It was a crisis in the date of Cronin's disappearance was the anniversary of the Phoenix park assassination, the identical odious event with which it was sought to connect Parnell. The London Times' conspiracy to destroy the Irish movement at home was opportunely sprung in a time of sore need for the Tories. If the Irish movement could be ruined in America, a crisis in the present would not the Pigott flag be retrieved and with a vengeance? Granting the possibility of another Pigott affair, no better intended victim could have been chosen than the ex-president of the Irish National League of America. An incident, well known his career, once put him on trial for murder. Parnell, under suspicion of a similar crime, the man would be fearfully handicapped. Cronin had for years boasted openly and often of possessing proofs of rottenness in Irish organizations and alleged misconduct by the ex-president. If the crime happened to Cronin, who delighted to pose as a mighty antagonist of the Land League official, what could be easier than to have it appear that Cronin was responsible? This phase of the mystery will not escape attention, I assure you, and to Irishmen who bitterly remember Pigott and Le Caron and hundreds of lesser demagogues working systematically for years, the idea is no mere idle theory.

"A check to the Parnellites now would be worth heaven itself to the Tories. Their London Times case is daily bearing an ignominious end, and closely following comes the great congress of Irish-Americans at Philadelphia, where thousands upon thousands of dollars, it has been expected, would be contributed for Cronin. At this moment, however, suddenly stands revealed a horror and scandal second to none in the history of politics. You can draw your own conclusions. I more than half have mine.

Cronin and the Irish Cause.

People who are investigating and discussing the problem of Cronin's death are not dealing with those things which are intimately connected with his disappearance. They are taking facts, conditions, and theories prior to his disappearance. They point to the accepted facts that Dr. Cronin and his friends believed that he would be killed. The apprehension was induced because he had been engaged for years in a relentless pursuit of others who were doing him wrong, by what was called at his command to ruin and discredit that man among his fellow-Irishmen. These a-priori facts in the minds of these friends of Cronin indicate to them what was done with him, why it was done, and the men who did it. But circumstantial evidence may be fatally misleading.

Dr. Cronin had been for years the personal and political enemy of Alexander Sullivan, ex-president of the Land League. He had at one time accused Sullivan of the misappropriation of Irish funds to the amount of about $50,000. Sullivan, in turn, in the hands of a leading named Morning Star, accused Cronin of this alleged offense and acquitted. Cronin presided at that trial. The acquittal of Sullivan did not satisfy Cronin and his friends. They went at it again, and again, until Sullivan was forced to the wall. He was found guilty of treason to the Irish cause.

But time brought swift changes. Cronin recovered himself and rallied his friends. He was reinstated in the Clan-na-Gael. The charge of treason was wiped out. He resumed his relentless pursuit of Sullivan and his friends, and in the bitterness of his experience. By an accident of business the Traders' bank of Chicago failed. It was at this bank that Mr. Sullivan did business. The books fell into the hands of a leading named Morning Star, and he found, it is said, that at about the time Sullivan was accused of having appropriated the Irish funds, he had deposited $20,000 in the bank for use of those societies. They say that this being the fact, the trial being in progress, Mr. Sullivan cannot disclose what he did with this money. It would, they say, supply the British Government, with the missing link of evidence.

Among the rumors is one to this effect: When Le Caron was testifying in the Parnell trial he asked the names of the other body besides him who were named. They were asked for were the names of Irishmen in the employ of the British government to inform upon their fellow-countrymen. Le Caron expostulated against naming them, saying if he did so they would be killed. It was then agreed that he should submit a list of these names to the court and Queen's counsel. This was done. From no one knows where, impalpable, unsustained, starting, the subject has gone forth that the name of Dr. Cronin was on this list of British spies. The story carries with it the statement that Cronin's duty was to spy on the Irish methods of the Irish societies and incidentally to create doubt and suspicion concerning the proper disposition of the money raised. An acceptance of this belief would make a Sullivan an martyr to the machinations of a British spy.

At any rate this story that Cronin was a spy is a fact. He might have been found to be one. It is a fact that the Irishmen to "remove" him. That, at all events, if understood to be their belief. There is provision, it is said, for just such emergencies in the constitutions of the Irish societies. "Remove" means kill, abduct, assassinate—anything to put a man out of the way. It might be that he was killed because he was indeed an informer, or it might be that he was killed to secure his "removal" by this story about his being a spy was fabricated and launched upon the sea of rumor.

It might be that Cronin was not a spy but that the men whom he killed him believed that he was. They might have been long.

Long Sticks to His Story.

TORONTO, Ont., May 24.—Long, the correspondent who claimed to have met and conversed with Dr. Cronin in this city a few days after his disappearance, reiterated his story, notwithstanding the finding of Cronin's body, but nobody believes him. Long says Cronin told him he felt to escape being murdered, and thinks Cronin must have returned to Chicago to be assassinated. As to the report that Long invented the story of his interview with Cronin at the instance of the murderers, to throw the detectives off the scent, he pronounces it utterly false.

PEOPLE OF PROMINENCE.

Sir Morrell Mackenzie has been spending a few weeks in the Canary Isles.

The recently deceased Lady Arnold, wife of the author of "The Light of Asia," was a daughter of William Henry Channing.

No authentic picture of Phillips Brooks has ever appeared in a publication. His photograph can not be obtained for publication, and the great divine says that it never will be if he has his say.

John Bright was a great lover of domestic animals, and they in turn always manifested their affection for him. Cats were his favorite pets. For dogs he did not care so much and for horses still less.

George Meredith, the novelist, is just 61 years of age. He has been twice married, the first time to the daughter of Thomas Love Peacock, the well-known friend of Shelley. His second wife, who died about two years ago, lies buried in the churchyard near Bournemouth, the novelist's present home.

His two children, one a daughter 17 years old, and the other a son of 23, who is an electrical engineer, live with him in a home-ruled and a democratic air.

Herr von Bulow had a great compliment paid to him in New York the other afternoon. As he sat at the piano playing before a large audience from both sexes, orchestra and galleries mice came running out to listen to him. The mice are known to be great music lovers, but it is said that they never appear at so great numbers at any musical entertainment before.

MUSICAL MELANGE.

It is once more positively stated that Mile Maria Van Zandt has been engaged to sing in the United States next season.

A monster musical festival is being arranged for the Paris exposition of 1889. Twelve hundred musicians are to compose a military band under the leadership of M. Wittze.

Adelaide Ristori is now in Paris staying in her splendid Rue Malesherbes mansion. She is the wife of the Marquis Capranica del Grillo, a leading member of the old Papal nobility.

A musical manuscript of Mozart was sold a few weeks ago in Berlin for 555 marks, and a letter from Lessing for 500 marks. This is like life insurance; one has to die to realize it.

Pauline Lucca declares that after her approaching American tour she will retire from the stage. She has purchased a villa in Grunow, where she intends to open a school for opera singers.

Patti sang for $5,000 a night in London, which is the highest price yet. This is singing up among the high C's. And yet according to the great Frau Lehman Kallisch, "Patti is over the hill. Doubtless there are many of us, even Germans, who would be overjoyed to be 'over' on like terms.

Another juvenile prodigy has just made his debut at St. Petersburg, but he hardly comes up to the average of prodigies nowadays. He is already 4 years of age, and plays only Chopin. His father has to work the pedals for him on account of the youth's small hands.

The New York Star has the following communication, which is sufficiently unique and suggestive to copy: "Mr. H. E. Arnold, a young American student of music in Germany, writes to say that he has been left without means to continue his studies, in which he has made considerable progress, through the sudden abandonment by a blind friend from whom he earned his living by reading to him. His address is 3 Central street, fourth floor, Leipzig."

The Cornelia songstress, Miss Silly Sanderson, is likely to be the means of divorcing her tutor, Composer Massenet, from his wife. According to a Paris correspondent, Mme. Massenet is growing jealous of the young opera singer, who Christine Nilsson said could take one higher and hold it longer than any singer she ever heard. If she can do this, and also make it longer than anybody else, not counting much on quality, she ought to be an immense success in this country.

MONSTER SPIDERS.

Some Wonderful Specimens That a Traveler Found in Ceylon and India.

Far up in the mountains of Ceylon and India there is a spider that spins a web like bright yellow silk, the central part of which is five feet in diameter while the supporting lines, or guys, as they are called, measure about ten or twelve feet long; and riding quickly in the air, morning you may dash right into it, the stout threads twining round your face like a lace veil, while as the creature who has woven takes up his position in the middle, he generally catches you right on the nose, and though he seldom bites or stings, the contact of his large body and long legs is anything but pleasant. You may try to pull it off, but he will follow you, and he will, and though not venomous, his jaws are as powerful as a bird's beak, and you are not likely to forget the encounter.

The bodies of these spiders are handsomely decorated, being bright gold or scarlet underneath, while the upper part is covered with the most delicate scale of brown, with the webs of the spider, which are five feet in diameter while the supporting lines, or guys, as they are called, measure about ten or twelve feet long; and riding quickly in the air, morning you may dash right into it, the stout threads twining round your face like a lace veil, while as the creature who has woven takes up his position in the middle, he generally catches you right on the nose, and though he seldom bites or stings, the contact of his large body and long legs is anything but pleasant. You may try to pull it off, but he will follow you, and he will, and though not venomous, his jaws are as powerful as a bird's beak, and you are not likely to forget the encounter.

The nuch-talked-of Mississippi girl who bought calico and made a bonnet with the 5 cents given her for a birthday present, is so it is said, likely to die a millionaire. She sold the bonnet for $40, for 40 cents and kept turning her capital over till it amounted to $40. This she put into a cow, whose milk she sold for $20, besides raising a calf worth as much as she now has $800 worth of cattle and $30 cash as the result of a small business.

The "Rose Fenwick" collapsible bonnet was invented, according to Mrs. Crawford, by Miss Fenwick, the daughter of the Admiral. Play-boys who frequent the pit will have reason to bless the inventor if it proves the coming bonnet. It shuts up like a crush hat, and when in its "collapsed" position it looks like a fan or a fan-shaped reticule, and can be made to serve as such hooked on to the girdle. When open it is like any other bonnet of the Fenwick form, and as it is made of silk, it is perfect, it might be thrust into a glove box. For matinee dances it would be ideal.

MINIATURE JOKES.

If it's a fair question, what does it cost to board a train?

It seems queer that the man who is ahead in a pedestrian race should be shut out from the prize money by a Bismarck shut out the American hog is apparent. He forswore the pigs in clover.

Buffalo Bill denies the report that he has ceased to scout. He says that he scouts the idea of returning to private life.

Pearl's Soap secures a beautiful complexion.
